LORD ROBERTS WOULDN'T PAY.

REFUSED TO GIVE UP £1,000 FOR THE ORDER OF THE GARTER.

That's Why His Arms Do Not Appear on His Stall in St. George's Chapel -He Thought a Soldier's Reward Should Not Be Turned Into a Penalty.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Nov. 22.-An American visitor to St. George's Chapel, Windsor, this week noticed a curious omission in the paraphernalia of the Knights of the Garter. Each member of this, the highest British order, has a stall assigned for his use in the royal chapel, on which is placed his arms and knightly banner.

The seat belonging to Lord Roberts did not bear these emblems of heraldry, and the visitor naturally inquired the reason of the omission. The old verger endeavored to evade the question, but the persistence of the inquirer was such that it finally elicited the information that, despite the fact of the King conferring the honor on lord Roberts in public, the latter could not as yet enjoy the full benefits of knighthood because he had refused to pay the traditional fees exacted by court officials upon the initiation of individuals who were about to receive the royal favor.

It appeared further that the sum demanded for the acceptance of the King's gift was no less than £1,000.

This fat perquisite to court officials, Lord Roberts argued, should be paid by the Government, if by anybody. He had not sought the decoration of the Garter. It was given to bim in partial recognition of his services in South Africa, and he did not consider it fair that what was nominally a reward should in reality be a heavy ax on his private purse.

The matter has ben in a deadlock for several months and is likely to remain so, as far as Lord Roberts is concerned.

This incident calls attention to the fact that all the so-called honors conferred in Great Britain entail heavy expense on the recipient in the shape of fees to various court officials. The sum is very considerable even in the case of ordinary knighthood, but as the distinction rises the amounts increase until only men of wealth care to meet them.

This has not been a practical difficulty in ordinary cases, because it has been the settled policy not to grant a title unless the recipient is amply able to live in the in his intention to take advantage of the style befitting his rank. It is almost without precedent, however, that a man who has been honored despite himself has been sufficiently independent to refuse to submit to this ancient extortion.

HOT AFTER THE HUMBERTS. French Chief of voltee Says He'll Have 'Em All Soon.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. PARIS, Nov. 22 - I ie story that a syndicate has taken up the matter of finding the Humberts, the notorious swindlers who were connected with the disposition of the "Crawford millions," in order to obtain the rewards offered, has attracted great attention.

The new Chief of Police, M. Hamard, informed the newspapers to-day that the police possess information which will probably lead to the arrest in a short time of the whole Humbert family.

Senator Valle, the Minister of Justice. had an interview to-day with MM Bulot and Cavard and other functionaries in regard to the matter and impressed upon them the necessity of arresting the swindlers, regardless of cost.

Scentics attributed this renewed activity on the part of the authorities to the fact that an interpellation on the subject is about to be made in the Chamber of Deputies.

NON-ALCOHOLIC BOOZE.

French Scientist Thinks He Has Solved the Rum Question With a Microbe, Special Cable Desputch to THE SUN. LONDON, Nov. 22.-Dr. Pitoy, the French scientist, in an article just published holds out hope that the difficulty of providing a satisfactory temperance drink has at last been solved, and this not by a new beyerage, but by a series of new drinks, every wine, beer and spirit now used being provided with a non-alcoholic understudy.

It has hitherto been accepted as a commonplace that there is no fermentation without alcohol. From time immemorial beers, wines and liquors have undergone this process through the action of some sort of yeast, the effect of which has been to decompose sugar or glucose into carbonic acid and alcohol

Dr. Pitoy set himself the task of destroying this theory, and he now says that he has discovered that the mysterious fermentations are the work of a certain microorganism, which he has succeeded in isolating and providing with a separate ex-

This new birth, on being introduced into the liquid to be fermented, fattens and swells to the bursting point. The result is a sort of fireworks display induced by the absorption of carbonic acid, each point of which, as it is thrown off, becoming in its turn an active cell. By this means the balls are kept rolling, so to speak, till the process of exhaustion supervenes and fermentation

s complete. It is said this method, instead of decomposing glucose in the proportion of one part of carbonic acid to two of alcohol, as by the old process, causes the latter two parts to assume the form of a non-alcoholic

It is inferred that beers and wines submitted to the new fermentation will emerge as temperance beverages.

PLAYWRIGHT SUES FOR LIBEL. Another Queer Kink in the English Law A Labouchere Victory.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Nov. 22.-Several London newspapers which criticised unfavorably the first production of the musical comedy The Girl from Kay's," a week ago, have been surprised to receive libel-suit summonses from Owen Hall, one of the authors of the piece. The editors were at first disposed to regard the affair as a joke, but it seems that the plaintiff is quite serious recent judgment against the Western Morning News in a similar case.

This example of the absurd lengths to which the English libel law is allowed to go will probably serve to secure a reform by Parliament of the whole situation.

Henry Labouchere, editor of Truth and Me nber of Parliament, who for twenty years has been the most frequent defender of libel suits in England, won his greatest case this week. An adventurer named Cowen, better known as "T ie Lesser Columbus," had been exploiting Lords and Earls and finally the Chinese Ambassador in a clever scheme for his own advantage. which he worked under the name of the Article Club. This was ruthlessly exposed

There were two trials of the suit for libel. It cost Mr. Labouchere £25,000 to defend the cases, and of this amount he can only recover £5,000 in costs. In other words, his victory costs him £20,000.

This is another demonstration of the injustice of the English libel law, and it partly explains the pusi liminity of the Novæ Vremya" Says the Czar's Government Has Neglected the Chance Which the Boer War Offered-A Compliment to Successful British Diplomacy.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SES. LONDON, Nov. 22.-It is a common impression in England that Russia, of all countries, has profited tremendously, especially in the Far East, in the past three years by reason of the British imbroglio in South . with a long lamentation over the failure of Russia to seize this unexampled opportunity The British policy, according to the idea of the Russian Imperialistic party, has more than held its own all along the Asiatic at Seoul is all-powerful. This is the case in spite of the fact that Russia, as the article rather naïvely asserts, is the only Power whose territory marches with that of the Emperor of Corea. Not only, says the paper, has Russia failed to make use of the splendid oppotunity for advancing a step toward India, but Great Britain has actually been allowed to move toward Seistan, in Afghanistan, with the result of throwing a great barrier in the way of Russia's descent from Central Asia to the sea. Even an attempt to open negotiations of a commercial nature with Afghanistan has proved abortive, thanks to the hostility of the British Government.

Finally, says the Novoe Vremya, on the Bosphorous Great Britain has shamefully repaid the friendship of Russia at a critical moment by leaving Germany a free hand in the matter of the Bag ai railway. In a word, it comes to this: While Germany made a definite bargain for the price of her neutrality, gaining thereby Samoa and Bagdad, Russia, which was in a position to do infinitely greater harm to Great Britain, has befriended her in the most Quixot'e way, only to have her kindness repaid by open rank hostility.

This version of the diplomatic developments of the past three years rather amuses Englishmen, but it also sets them thinking in regard to the significance of such an utterance in a semi-official newspaper at St. Petersburg just at the present moment.
